How to minimize the palette to create luminous and emotional effects will be discussed by use of initial color studies and how to apply them to your own reference materials. Studying past and present Tonalist artists will be covered by use of slides and books throughout the 3 days; along with demos, class discussions, and one-on-one critiques. Students will bring their own reference materials. We will use our color studies creating in class to use within these reference materials.

This course is designed for oil painters of all levels who want to take their work to the next level. The focus will be on improving as a painter by emphasizing composition, design, value and color temperature and learning how to utilize these basic elements to express and complete a successful painting regardless of subject matter.

We will look at ways to improve composition to best portray what the artist wants to communicate to the viewer. The workshop will also explore how to better “see” nature and subject matter, as well as address various aspects of painting including materials, set-up, color mixing, paint application methods, surfaces, techniques and the fundamentals of design and composition. Emphasis will be on helping students discover their own personal style and process in creating their work.
